

The situations

At a restaurant, the waiter suddenly whispers, when delivering your food: "Watch out, it's poisoned!" and tells you to meet him outside in five minutes. As he leaves you, you notice that he is walking with a strange limp. People in the restaurant look worried at you and shake their heads, point at their watches and wave their hands, like a bird, flying away. You notice your table starts to buzz.

When you come home one day, your key doesn't fit your lock and someone changed the name on the mailbox to "Foxy Roxy". A neighbor calls the police when she sees you, and they charge you for attempt of burglary. You find a matchbox inside your pocket that you don't recognize, and your hand hurts a lot. You suddenly notice that your left shoe is colored bright blue and that your car has been egged.

You wake up in the middle of the night, when you hear a scream, as if someone was being attacked. Outside your house, you find a key with a tag on it that says "Box 398". The key is made out of solid gold. Your car has a note on it that says: "Go to Moscow and ask for Mikhail. Suddenly, you faint and the last thing you hear is the sound of cats, purring.

You see an old friend and he tells you to never wear jeans again, but not the reason. A bird lands on his head and he doesn't seem to react. All of a sudden, the sky turns deep purple and your head starts to ache incredibly. You also become really, really hungry for pickles.

You almost get run over by a pack of stampeding rhinos, on your way to work. The rhinos are all painted pink and after them, you hear engines that sound like tanks. Someone is running behind them, wearing a tuxedo, screamingly repeating "hold your breath, Hoss!"

One day, everyone calls you "Dave the Wrench" when they meet you and you don't understand why. Your mom calls and says she needs to borrow your car, a gun and 10,000 dollars, right away. Your car explodes in the parking lot, just minutes before you go out. At home, a pack of midget clowns are waiting for you, and they look hungry and hostile.

You wake up in a dark and cold cell, and you don't remember how you got there, who you are, or what has happened. The only thing you notice is the smell of freshly baked bread and the sound of angry voices outside your cell door. Someone next to you is starting to wake up, too. The man introduces himself as "Marty", cries all the time and tells you to "forget about Freeman".

One day, you see your name on a "Wanted" sign at the police station, with the reward of a million dollars to whoever brings you in. Under your picture it says: "known to smell of garlic and wear cowboy boots". Under your bed, you find a picture of a purple donkey. Next to it is a severed human finger, with a diamond ring on it.

On your birthday, someone leaves you a gift outside your door with a card on it. The gift box is ticking and the card says: "Happy B-day, Terrence". Your friends all of a sudden start to argue and throw cake at each other, your car explodes and a police helicopter lands outside your house. "Give us the hostage, Terry, and stop playing poker with the Dutch", a policeman says.

Your boss tells you that you need to pretend that you are him for a couple of days, “just for fun”. He gives you his gun, computer, a tape recorder and tells you “to never speak about Bob O’Halloran or the Philadelphia incident, never, not to anyone”. He also tells you to wear a fake beard, even though he himself has not got one. He needs all your paper clips too, he says and shoves a pack of Monopoly money in your hand.

When you wake up one morning, everything inside every room in your house is painted bright green, except one chair. There is a strange taste of coconut in your mouth and your arms hurt. Outside you hear the sound of chainsaws. Your dog is missing, too. You have a tattoo on your arm that says “Geno”.

Your best friend tells you that he wants you to apologize to everybody about the elephants and get rid of the snowboards. You don’t understand, and when you tell him, he starts to cry and says that you are the worst person in the world, and that he wants his money back. You also need to “get to Ramon”.

When you come to school, your locker has been broken into. Only one book is missing, and a bag of gems are placed right in the middle of the locker. They smell like someone recently washed them. When you turn around, a classmate stands behind you, crying. You ask why and he answers: “You promised you wouldn’t go to George again!” Your friend then faints. In his pocket, a gem falls out, similar to those you have.

At a party, someone introduces herself to you as “Janice Jones from Jamaica” and wants you to tell her where you go if you want to swim with dolphins. Immediately after that, another girl comes up and claims to be “Janice Jones from Jamaica” too, and asks you to bring her four hundred pounds of bacon, and hurry up. After that, the two girls start to argue about the other one being an imposter. The fire alarm suddenly goes off.

Inside your car, you find a black box, full of strange notes with weird symbols on. When you go to the police, they arrest you immediately and put you in jail. There, a suspicious looking and fruit-smelling fellow introduces himself to you as “The Moose” and he tells you that you did well in killing that “bastard José”. Shortly after, the jail guards start throwing up everywhere and you notice that your wristwatch is starting to beep with a loud noise.

When out shopping, a sales clerk who smells like lemon and vanilla approaches you and looks hostile. “Give me the code, or she is dead”, she growls and smiles at another customer. Before you answer, another sales clerk lunges at you both and screams “Zombies!”. You manage to escape from this madness, but out on the street a taxi car screeches to a halt next to you, a man with only blue clothes and blue skin opens the door, throws a bag of meat at you and says: “Find Mr. Callahan!”

When taking the bus, the other passengers all of a sudden start to sing and look at you. When you don’t sing, they laugh hysterically and start to throw pineapples at you. Outside the bus, a helicopter lands and a big man dressed as a priest jumps out, signaling for you to follow him. He asks you to “bring the tarantulas with you, and then drop the bomb!”

Inside an elevator, a strange man, with a Hungarian accent whispers to you to “look out for Ben in the middle”. He gives you a pink lollipop and hits you in the head with an umbrella before leaving. When he is gone, the elevator suddenly stops and green smoke starts seeping in. It smells like bananas and your arms start to feel numb.

In the grocery shop, the lights suddenly go out and people seem not to react at all. You ask, but no one understands what you mean. Another customer comes up to you and says “jungle fever or Japanese juice?”. He hugs you over and over again and you notice that he is bleeding from his eyes and his mouth.

In your garden, you find ten grown men, playing with children toys on the lawn. They seem to be wearing weird-looking helmets of some sort. Outside on the street, someone has dumped five hundred pounds of fresh fruit. From a distance, you can hear an angry crowd moving closer. They are all painted in orange and are carrying different kinds of kitchenware.

At the Zoo, you notice that one of the gorillas seems to be trying to make you come closer his cage. When you do, he starts to write something in the sand on the floor. Before you can read it, the zookeeper comes up and asks you about “the other white meat” and if you are “Derek or Derek’s brother”. Suddenly, the elephants break loose and attack jets fill the sky. The Zookeeper drops down to the ground and turns into dust. Your pockets are full of sugar.

After working out at the gym, someone comes up to you and apologizes for “ruining your life” and gives you a bag full of sandpaper. Behind him comes another person and gives you a stack of sandwiches, without saying anything. A third guy comes up after that and he pushes you to the floor, making you drop everything they gave you. Seconds after, all the lights go out and you hear wolves howling nearby.