

(Teachers - cut the paper and make different paper slips for every sentence)

Tell someone at the party why you decided to move to the country you live in now.

Explain how you and your husband/wife met and fell in love.

Talk about a funny or embarrassing moment one of your children had at school.

Complain about your job and explain why it's difficult or boring.

Describe your dream house and explain what makes it special.

Tell someone about a typical day in your life with your family.

Share a secret about your past that no one at the party knows.

Ask someone if they would like to move to your country and explain why.

Boast about one of your children and their talents or achievements.

Complain about your husband's or wife's annoying habits.

Try to convince someone to change jobs and do what your husband/wife does.

Ask someone for parenting advice—you are struggling with one of your kids!

Invite someone to visit your home and describe what they will see and do there.

Talk about what you would do if you didn't have your current job.

Ask someone at the party if they know any good schools for your children.

Brag about your home country and try to make someone want to visit it.

Share what your family does together on the weekends.

Complain about the weather in your country and dream about moving somewhere else.

Ask someone about the cost of living in their country compared to yours.

Pretend you just won the lottery—what will you change in your life?

Describe the perfect holiday for your family and where you would go.

Ask someone if they think your job or your partner's job is more difficult.

Share the most exciting thing that has happened in your family this year.

Pretend you are looking for a new house and ask others for recommendations.

Tell someone about your children's hobbies and what they are passionate about.

Discuss your favorite fruit and why it's the best—try to convince others!

Ask someone for ideas on how to make your job more interesting.

Imagine you're writing a book about your life—what would the title be?

You want to move to a new country—ask someone to help you decide where.

You're thinking of changing your career—ask others at the party what you should do instead.